

Eileen Jolly is currently City of Angels Community Choirs Graphic Production Artist and Librarian. She has been in the typesetting/advertising field for over 30 years. While at her regular job not only does she assist in graphic production, but also maintains & organizes electronic files, and assists with job tracking/billing. These skills have enabled her to create and meet advertising requirements as well as maintain a large music library, for COACC.

Eileen's interest in COACC stems from singing in elementary, junior and senior high schools. Eventually she became part of a church choir, before moving on with COACC. She works and strives to help COACC succeed so all singers of any age and skill have a welcoming environment in which to begin or continue singing.

She has held leadership roles all through high school as a Drill Team Squad Leader learning routines and teaching; was an assistant, and leader, for her daughters' Girl Scout troops; has taught pre-school religious education, and was Chairperson, at a Chatsworth church within the L.A. Archdiocese.

When she's not "on the job" or working with COACC she enjoys family time, and attending run/walk events with her daughters and friends.
